Tenpots and coffeepots do not go back very far, since tea and coffee were not introduced into Europe until the seventeenth century, and no silver tea pot or kettle is known of earlier date than 1709. Festoons and medallions He Says He Saves More People From are characteristic ornaments of teapots of the time of the early Georges. Not until the middle of the eighteenth century, however, do we find silver urns, tea strainers and tea caddies. Cream jugs, says Harper's Bazar, followed the fashions of the larger pieces.

The first English sauceboat in silver belongs to the year 1727. Silver candlesticks are older, being found first. with square bases and fluted columns. in the reign of Charles 11. Medallions. festoons and drapery characterize later candlesticks, and the Corinthian column pattern, so great a favorite, was first introduced about 1765. Cake baskets of the beautiful cut silver in which Paul Lamerie so excelled as a maker belong also to the middle of the eighteenth century. Many trays and salvers were made in this cut silver, which now, by the way, is again in fashion. and deservedly so.

Peoples. Peonles are to be the flower of next year. As a decorative flower indeed none other compares with it. The old fashioned magenta peony was not seductive in color, but now you can have the flower in colors delicate as a wild rose-pink, white, mauve, purple, white with purple spots-what you will. Plant your peonies fairly deep into the ground in any good, rich soil and give them plenty of room and plenty of water. Treat them with generosity, and they will repay you by blooming lavishly and making your whole garden flush with color. A dozen varieties massed together in clumps is a sight fit for the gods. Peonies may be planted at any time from now until April. The sooner the better for our own sakes.

Russian Girls In Paris.

There are nearly 150 Russian girl students in Paris, nearly all Hebrews and nearly all poor, but they are achieving a record for brilliant intellectuality. Mlle. Lipinska, who was one of the first to graduate, presented a thesis 660 pages long to her astonished professors. Almost all of these Russian women students take scientific courses. Literature and philossphy do not seem to appeal to them.

Book Borrowing.

One need have no delicacy in asking a person to return a borrowed book. Books are property, and when borrowed they should be carefully protected from injury and promptly returned to their owners. I doubt the propriety of borrowing a book if one is near a lending library. We do not borrow shoes or gloves or furniture. and why should we make an exception of books? I think the owner of a set should hesitate to let a single volume go out of her possession. Either make a loan of the entire set or give your friend permission to consult it in your home.-Laules' Home Journal.

A Problem About Corn. Here is a puzzle in geometry. It does not require a skilled mathematician, however, to solve it.

It is required to demonstrate (geometrically) that a larger crop of corn can be grown on an acre of level ground than on an acre of slanting ground. The stalks of corn are supposed to grow perpendicularly in both cases, and all other particulars, such as fertility of the soil and the like, to be

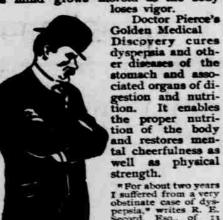

The ingenious reader will probably have no trouble in solving the problem without assistance.

* For about two years I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia, writes R. E. Secord, Esq. of 13 Eastern Ave. Toronto, Ontario. "It tried a great number of remedies without success. I finally lost faith in them all. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food on my stomach for a long time: felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor follow my occupation. Some four months ago a friend recommended your Golden Medical Discovery. After a week's treatment I

A CHIROPODIST TALKS ABOUT HIS WORK AND HIS PATIENTS.

Acute Misery Than Most Phy-Does Damage to the Feet.

Gossiping with the undertaker, the veterinary surgeon, the barber, the barkeeper and other familiars, who call him "Doc." the chiropodist was in an instructive mood. He could not quite understand how it could be that the really good and able men of his calling were not ranked higher in the social scale.

"Now, I save more people from acute misery than most physicians," said. "My work is often just as dangerous as that of the surgeon, for there is the same peril of gangrene. that awful shadow that looms up wherever the knife touches the body. The surgeon has an advantage over When he has made a wound there is no danger of the patient put-This my patient is apt to do in drawing on his sock. My position is really one of great responsibility, but there are not many who treat me with any marked respect.

"It would surprise you to know how many people have bad feet. If my observations are correct, and I don't see why the average I give should not be right, 95 per cent of the people New York have one form or another of foot trouble. I cut away more than twice my own weight in callous every year.

"Of course the trouble comes from the shoe, and there seems to be no remedy, for the made to order shoe is really, as a rule, no better than the one manufactured by wholesale. The nearest approach to a remedy for 'trouble that is rarely cured, but can be greatly relieved, is to wash, the feet every night and every morning. They act as one of the main sewers of the body and should be constantly washed. Then do not wear a loose shoe or a tight one. The snug shoe is the best.

"Another and a very important point is that the socks should exactly fit the feet, and, if one can afford them, they should be wool of different weights for the different seasons.

"Scarcely a man whose toes I am whittling fails to ask me why any man, careful as he is, should be pestered with corns. In wet weather or just before a change in the weather he is brought to the verge of nervous prostration. He is irritable and even suffers fever. His business is interfered with in the daytime, and at night his rest is disturbed by aching feet.

"I tell him the exact truth, and that is that the vast majority of his fellows suffer as he does and that those exempt have their feet regularly attended to. It is just as necessary as it is for people to be regular with their meals or in their visits to the dentist. The reason for this is in great part the city pavements. It is the same with men as with horses.

"Very few men walk properly. They twist on the sole of the foot, making an extra strain and wear at one spot. Nature tries to remedy this by forming a protection of hard skin, but she overdoes this, because she is hampered in the operation by the shoe. This twisting is absolutely due to what any physician will tell you is true. One limb in nine out of ten cases is a fraction shorter than the other. Then, too, few men with their eyes closed can walk in a straight line. With their eyes open they steer with their feet. It is this difference in strength or length of the legs and the necessary length of the legs and the necessary my feet.
steering that makes the twist, and the "Hello, doc," he said briskly. 'I got twist makes the corn.

"Talk about your Bertillon measurements. It would be better to record the twist and character of walk. No two men walk just exactly the same, and the twist of the foot is absolutely different in all men.

"With such good fellows as you for companions I ought not to talk about my social station. I treat not less than 200 patients a week, and they average 50 cents apiece, so my income is have deducted expenses. I own my own home, but the wife and daughters do not like the chiropodist's sign and the great gold foot at the front door.' -New York Times.

Snakes In the Church.

This snake lived in the church of G.'s first parish in Australia. Its bole was visible to the congregation, and it used to show its head to them at service time (during the sermon probably) and make them nervous. So it was sought to entice it to its destruction with saucers of milk. The parson used to lay the bait over night and go to look for results in the morning. Always the saucer was found empty, but for a long time the snake was not found. At last he saw it coiled asleep upon the white cloth laid sun from the east window poured had not been quite so brazen, I think I warmly down upon it. So he bewed it in pieces before the altar, as Samuel hewed Agag.-Empire Review.

ONE ON THE DENTIST

HIS ADVERTISING SCHEME WORKED A LITTLE TOO WELL.

It Brought Down Upon Him About the Coolest Customer He Ever Encountered and the Customer Got a Long Way the Best of It.

"I'm through with freak advertising." said the young dentist. "I've had my fling at trade secured through illegitimate tricks, and I've sworn off from further cultivation of the public in ways that are

"It was about six months ago that I first resorted to irregular methods of securing patronage. Things were going fairly well with me then, but I made up my mind that I was entitled to still more business and in order to secure my just deserts availed myself of one of those idiotic advertising schemes. I wrote letters to total strangers whose names had been picked up haphazard out of directories and newspapers and inclosed bills for services rendered. These letters were all modeled on the same copy. In them I suavely expressed my hope that the cuspids and bicuspids of my unknown patrons had been in good condition since I last treated them, and I generously suggested that if they so desired I would be pleased to have them call and undergo a final dental examination as a guarantee of thorough satisfactcion before the payment of the inclosed bills, which ranged from $25 to $50.

"Of course I never expected to get any money out of these bills. My object in sending them was to arouse curiosity among the fictitious debtors, who, having never even heard of me professionally or otherwise, would naturally be anxious to find out something about me and the strange circumstances of their unmerited bills. I had pursued this plan for about four months with tolerable success, when I sent out a bill and the stereotyped letter to a man who lived on West Twentythird street and may be called Whitman for the purpose of the story. His bill was for $25. That letter, like all the others. was only a stray shot fired at a very elu-sive target, and the chance of getting a reply was only one in a thousand. In tha particular case the long shot won, and two days after mailing the letter I was honored with a call from Mr. Whitman. He had a decidely strenuous manner, and his opening remarks fairly swept me off your letter yesterday, and I was mighty glad to see that you are disposed to be so accommodating about that work you did on my teeth last week. The fact is you did an infernally poor job. The plugs have all fallen out already, and you warranted them for ten years. That being the case, it's nothing more than common justice that you should fix me up again. I had intended to kick against paying your bill, but since you are willing to rectify your mistake, why. I'll give you another trial, and if you do all right the secsomething over $4,500 a year after I ond trip I'll pay you the $25 without a murmur.

"I stared at Mr. Whitman in amaze ment. Quite certain was I that never be fore had I met the gentleman, and consequently I was positive that I had never plugged his teeth. On the impulse of the moment I said as much.

Well, sir, you can't do anything of the kind. Fortunately I've got your bill right here to prove that you and nobody else did it. If you didn't tinker with my teeth, you have no business to send me a bill for dental services. But you did send me a bill, and for $25, too. you can't go back on your own work." Without a doubt Mr. Whitman was over the chancel carpet, where the the coolest customer I ever met. If he

The Csar's Snuffbox.

Czar Paul's snuffbox was as sacred as the imperial crown itself. No one was allowed to touch it. Kaploff wagered that he would take a pinch out of it. One morning he walked up to the table which stood near the bed on which the czar still reclined and boldly took from it the majestic snuffbox. Opening it noisily, he inserted his fingers, and while Paul I. was watching South of Main, West of Seventh Stree him in stupefaction at such audacity he sniffed up the fragrant powder with evident satisfaction.

"What are you doing there, you rogue?" exclaimed the czar excitedly. "Having a pinch of snuff, sire. I have now been on duty for eight hours.

The Capitol Dome.

The capitol dome at Washington is the only considerable dome of iron in the world. It is a vast hollow sphere weighing 8,000,300 pounds. How much is that? More than 4,000 tons, or al-most the weight of 70,000 full grown persons, or about equal to 1,000 ladened coal cars of four tons each, which, if strung out one behind the other, would occupy a mile and a half of track.

On the very top of the dome the allegorical figure "America." weighing 13,985 pounds, lifts its proud head high in air. The pressure of this dome and figure upon the piers and pillars is 14.477 pounds to the square foot. It would, however, require a pressure of 755,286 pounds to the square foot to crush the supports of the dome. The cost of this immense dome was little short of $1,000,000.

Iceland's Hot Springs.

The hot springs in Reykjadal, though not the most magnificent, are perhaps North of D Street, East of Touth Stre the most curious among the numerous phenomena of this sort in Iceland. On entering the valley you see columns of vapor ascending from different parts of it. There are a number of apertures in a sort of platform of rock. The water is 212 degrees F., and it rises two or three feet into the air. A river flows through the valley, in the midst of which a jet of boiling water issues with violence from a rock raised but a few feet above the ice cold water of the river.

Not far from this is the grotto or cave of Surt, which is so large that no one was penatrated to its inner end.
